The summer has been busy at the Club as we continue work on several necessary maintenance projects and are in the process of having a Historical Structural Report prepared. We look forward to welcoming the returning students and members who have been away for the summer. Come – join us on the deck for lunch during the last days of summer.

Upcoming “Arts in the Afternoon” programs are listed below. Programs include music, music interwoven with storytelling and a wonderful presentation on the architect Julia Morgan. Karen McNeill is a historian based in Oakland who has been researching and writing about Julia Morgan since 2000.

McNeill's latest article titled “Women Who Build: Julia Morgan and Women's Institutions” looks both at women and gender issues in the architectural profession as well as how Progressive Era women used the built environment to expand their roles in society. This was an era when many women's clubs and YWCAs were built – including our own Women's Faculty Club – and is a fitting topic as we continue our celebration of the Club's 90th anniversary. Explore the social forces that empowered women at this point in history and enabled the creation of women's spaces.

Be sure and visit the exhibit on John Galen Howard, architect of our own Club, at the Environmental Design Library before it ends on September 6th. The full newsletter will return in September.
